THE TOBACCO BILL.

We know that i would be to the best interest of the American tobacco grower if pending legislation was enacted and successfully enforced to prevent the export of tobacco seed to foreign countries. With the livelihood of our farmers depending to such a large extent upon income from leaf sales, and with foreign production threatening to ruin our big export business, the problem therein presented should be approached from every angle.

However, quite frankly, we see no chance to ever enforce a law to prevent taking tobacco seed out of the United States. Why, enough tobacco seed could b smuggled out in the lining of a coat to start the farmers of some other nation to planning! Is would be th easiest law ever enacted to violate.

he idea of the law is good, but enforcement of it would be another matter!

A JOB WELL STARTED

We have heard nothing but praise for the manner in which the Garden Club handled and put over the big Clean-up Week Parade here. It was easily the best thing of its kind ever staged here. As to its results: that is still up to the public. Surely no more could have been done to call attention upon the importance of a Clean-up Week. NOW, will we do the actual Clean-up as thoroughly as we did the parade!!

BOY SCOUTS AT LONG LAST

We congratulate the Appomattox Rurita,, Club upon sponsoring the formation of a Troop of the Boy Scouts of America here. If there ever was a worthwhile organization, the name of it is: BOY SCOUTS of America. It's easily the best youth organization we know of. The Boy Scout handbook, we are told, ranks next to the Bible in world sales. The duties of a Scoutmaster and of a sponsoring committee are rich in opportunity for genuine public service. The dividends paid equal any other investment you can make.

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

AMOS PLEADS FOR JUSTICE

LESSON TEXT—Amos 5:1, 10-15, 21-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish judgment in the gate.—Amos 5:15.

Social justice, though much spoken about in recent times, has been the concern of right thinking men ever since sin entered the world and started man's inhumanity toward man. In the prophet Amos we find the eloquent and plain-spoken voice of one crying out against such conditions almost 800 years before Christ.

This lesson is one which is of utmost importance because in our present-day struggle with social injustice we have come to assume that it is primarily a political or economic question. Amos and all other Scripture right from the "root of infection," which is sin. Sin in the heart leads to sinful actions, and these inevitably involve others, and thus bring about social problems. Let us learn from Amos to cure our social ills by bringing man to God.

I. Lamentation—In the Midst of Prosperity (v. 1).

From the little village of Tekoa and out of the wilderness in which he had been a herdsman came Amos the man of God, to hurl his prophecy of disaster upon the heads of the complacent people of Israel and to take up a lamentation over those in Israel living in luxury and prosperity.

True it was that the common people were being ground under the heel of cruel oppression, but who cared about the poor as long as they could be squeezed for taxes to support the luxurious comforts and pleasures of the rich? A prosperity which does not reach the homes of the poor is not a real prosperity at all. When in addition thereto it encourages the "haves" to oppress the "have-nots" it becomes a grave danger, a real cause for lamentation.

II. The Reason—Sin Which Hates Reproof (vv. 10-13).

Sin is always a horrible thing, but when men who have fallen into sin are responsive to correction and ready to repent and forsake their sin, there is hope. The thing which made Israel's state so serious in the sight of God and of His prophet was that they had only hatred for those who were bold enough to reprove them or to live among them according to God's standards (vv. 10, 13). "They will not endure no criticism have slammed the door in the face of truth. When we get to the place where we cannot endure having our faults pointed out, we are on the way to moral collapse" (Douglass).

The sin which had thus hardened their hearts showed itself in social inequality and injustice which was built upon greed, oppression, corruption in the courts, etc. The shocking picture which Amos paints bears a surprising similarity to conditions in our world today. Let us face the problem and seek its solution.

III. The Cure—Seek Good Not Evil (vv. 14, 15).

God's Word condemns sin, but it always presents a remedy. In Christ we have the perfect, final, and complete answer to the sin question. Amos, speaking centuries before Christ, admonished Israel to repent and to turn away from the evil which they had cultivated with such assiduity and to be equally zealous about doing good, in the hope that "it may be that the Lord God of hosts will be gracious" (v. 15). How favored we are to be permitted not only to urge people to turn from evil to good, but to offer them the One who is the way, the truth, and the life.

Israel did not repent, but in folly depended on their religious ceremonies to satisfy an offended God. The prophet therefore declares that

IV. Religion Is Not a Substitute for Justice (vv. 21-24).

God had no pleasure in their religious observances and rites, because they were presented with unrepentant hearts and by hands which were soiled by the oppression of their fellow man.

Mark it well, God has no delight in the attendance upon church services, beautiful though they may be, does not listen to the sweet strains of sacred music, nor does He accept the rich "offerings" of those who live in unforsaken sin and who pay for magnificent church buildings and beautiful church services with money gotten by crooked dealings and social injustice. God is righteous and God's Word always cuts right through the hypocrisy of men. Let us heed the plea of Amos, that righteousness should run through our personal and national life "as a mighty stream," and then we shall be ready both as individuals and as a people to worship Him aright.

A Gracious Lord

His work is honorable and glorious; and his righteousness endureth forever. He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered; the Lord is gracious and full of compassion.—Psalm 111:3-4.

Varied Diet for Soil Will Restore Fertility

A well-rounded diet of plant foods for undernourished soils, rather than dependence on a single "cure-all" for restoring fertility, was urged by the Middle West Soil Improvement committee in a recent statement.

"Many farmers believe that alfalfa, clover, soybeans and other legumes are the one and only prescription for building a healthy soil," the statement points out.

"The value of legumes in crop rotation should not be underestimated. But by themselves they are not a panacea for soil ills. To be effective, they must be accompanied by adequate amounts of phosphorus and potash."

The benefits from legumes lie in their ability to deposit nitrogen in the soil. But if farmers continually increase the nitrogen and neglect the phosphorus and potash requirements, they will have a soil top-heavy in one form of plant food and woefully lacking in the others.

The results of over-emphasis on one type of plant food at the expense of others is evident in grain crops which follow nitrogen-building crops. Lodging, over-development of straw and under-development of grain are common forms of damage.

"Nitrogen, phosphorus and potash are all vital, but each must contribute its benefits in co-operation with the others. Some land requires more of one fertilizer element than another. The average farmer can determine the needs of his soil by consultation with his county agent or agronomists of his state college or experiment station. They are equipped to make specific suggestions concerning officially recommended fertilizer analyses adapted to various soils and crops."

Local Red Cross Thanks CCC & Highway Dept.

The Appomattox Chapter of the American Red Cross wishes to publicly express gratitude for the people of Appomattox and the Town of Appomattox to the following persons: Capt. William Matthews, Lt. Richard N. Belton, Lt. Stagdale, Capt. R.W. Phillips and every enrollee at Camp Appomattox, CCC; and Mr. P. M. Burton, resident highway engineer, his office staff and every man on the road forces in the county.

During the deep snow in January, the Camp officers and men, Mr. Burton and his workers toiled tirelessly at the request of the chairman of the Red Cross and C. S. McDearmon, mayor, to prevent suffering. Neither the Town of Appomattox nor the county had the equipment to remove the heavy snow which constituted a serious hazard.

The officers and boys at the Camp went anywhere to clear private roads so that the doctors could reach the homes of people who were very ill, while a call to Mr. Burton or to Miss Lola Moore, his secretary, stating that doctors could not reach some home where there was illness always meant that in the shortest possible time a crew was brought to the Red Cross office "the highway department has cleared the road." The CCC boys helped the doctors to get to the homes. Appomattox has never been given more splendid, unselfish cooperation and the officers of the Red Cross feel that the people of the town and county should know who helped them in time of disaster. We hope that many of you will personally thank the CCC and the highway personnel for a fine outstanding job. We thank them now because they will know that although spring is here yet we still remember that they dug us out of the snow.

Falkland Islands

Recently there was held at Stanley, the capital of the Falkland islands, a week of festivities in celebration of the centenary of the colony. This far removed crown colony, says a London Times correspondent, is in the southern Atlantic at the gate of Magellan's passage into the Pacific, and is separated from Montevideo, where the traveler bids farewell to the softer delights of civilization, by 1,000 miles of desolate seas which are swept into constant fury by the wild storms of the roaring 40s. The archipelago of two larger and 200 smaller islands can scarcely claim to be sub-Antarctic, but it clings close in winter to the skirts of the ice pack and is chastened at all seasons of the year by the frosty breath of the Great White South. The islands were discovered by John Davis, who sighted them in the Desire in 1592.
